Who Am I

I am a white vehicle. You see me in a hospital. I have a siren. Who am I?

'A' Sound

Listen and repeat.

A as in apple

A as in ant

A as in alligators made on my pant.

The Ant and the Dove

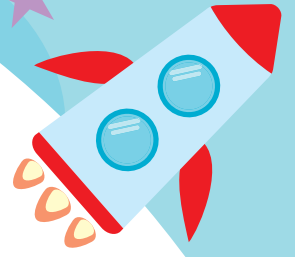

It was a hot summer day. An ant was very thirsty. She started searching for water and came near a river. She climbed up on a small stone and tried to drink water. "Thud!" Suddenly, the ant slipped and fell into the river.

A dove was sitting on a branch of a tree near the river. He saw the ant falling into it. He quickly plucked a leaf and dropped it into the river near the ant. The ant saw the leaf and climbed onto it. The leaf became a boat for the ant and moved towards the dry ground. The ant jumped out happily. She looked up at the dove and thanked him. The ant and the dove became friends.

One day, a bird catcher came near the river. He saw the dove on the tree and decided to catch it. The dove was resting and had no idea about the bird catcher. The ant saw the bird catcher and guessed what he was going to do. As he was about to throw his net over the dove to trap it, the ant bit him on the foot. "Ahhh!" screamed the bird catcher loudly with pain and dropped his net. The dove heard the scream and woke up. He quickly flew away from there. The bird catcher also went away. Later, the dove thanked the ant for saving his life and they played together.

Moral of the story: If you do good, good will come to you.
